Course Introduction / Overview:

This training course is designed to take sales leaders beyond the fundamentals of team management and into the realm of strategic leadership. In today's dynamic market, effective sales management is not just about hitting quotas, it's about building a sustainable, high-performing sales organization that can adapt to change and seize new opportunities. This program provides a comprehensive framework for developing a strategic vision, optimizing sales operations, and coaching a team for long-term success. We will explore key concepts from prominent academic authors in the field, such as Neil Rackham, whose influential work in his book, "Managing Major Sales: The Ultimate Guide," provides a foundational approach to managing complex, high-stakes sales. This course is essential for anyone responsible for leading a sales team. BIG BEN Training Center has designed this curriculum to ensure participants can use data to make informed decisions, align sales strategies with corporate objectives, and create a culture of continuous improvement. By mastering these principles, professionals will not only drive revenue growth but also build a resilient and motivated team that is ready to lead the market.
