

Professional Sports Media and Strategic Event Management Training Course

18 - 22 May 2026

Paris

5700 € (Per Person)

Ref: #MED1698_512065

Course Introduction / Overview:

The world of sports is a global phenomenon, and the way it's covered and managed has never been more critical. This comprehensive course, offered by BIG BEN Training Center, is designed to give you the skills needed to navigate the dynamic intersection of sports media and event management. We will explore the key principles of modern sports journalism, from crafting compelling narratives to using multimedia platforms for maximum reach. The course goes into the strategic planning and execution of large-scale sports events, covering everything from logistics and budgeting to risk management and fan engagement. We will also look at the economic forces at play, including the role of sponsorship, broadcasting rights, and the overall commercialization of sports. We'll examine the work of authors like Daniel D. M. Smith, a well-known name in the field of sports management, and his book "Strategic Sport Management." His work highlights the importance of strategic planning and ethical leadership in the sports industry, which are both key themes of this program. This course is for anyone looking to build a career in this exciting field. It provides a solid foundation for mastering the skills needed to succeed in sports management and media.

Target Audience / This training course is suitable for:

- Sports journalists and reporters.
- Event managers and coordinators.
- Marketing professionals in sports.
- Public relations specialists.
- Sports team and league executives.
- Communication and media students.
- Government agencies and sports commissions.

Target Sectors and Industries:

- Professional sports leagues and clubs.
- Sports media companies and broadcasters.
- Event management and production firms.
- Marketing and advertising agencies.
- Educational institutions with sports programs.
- Government agencies regulating sports.
- Apparel and sports equipment manufacturers.

Target Organizations Departments:

- Media relations and communications.
- Event operations and logistics.
- Marketing and brand management.
- Public relations.
- Sponsorship and partnerships.
- Business development.
- Corporate social responsibility.

Course Offerings:

By the end of this course, the participants will have able to:

- Develop and execute a comprehensive sports event management plan.
- Master the fundamentals of modern sports journalism and media production.
- Create effective communication strategies for sports organizations.
- Analyze and apply ethical principles in sports media coverage.
- Understand the financial aspects of sports events and media rights.
- Build a strong brand presence through strategic social media engagement.
- Manage crises and handle media relations during high-pressure situations.

Course Methodology:

BIG BEN Training Center uses a hands-on and immersive methodology to ensure participants gain practical skills they can use right away. The course includes a mix of case studies, interactive discussions, and simulations. We will examine real-world scenarios from past sporting events to understand the challenges and successes of their management and media coverage. Participants will work in teams on a simulated sports event planning project, from initial concept to post-event analysis. This teamwork will allow them to apply course concepts in a collaborative setting. Role-playing exercises will be used to practice media interviews, press conference management, and crisis communication. Expert trainers with extensive industry experience will guide these sessions and provide personalized feedback. The course also uses dynamic, interactive sessions to facilitate a deeper understanding of the topics. We believe this approach, which combines theoretical knowledge with practical application, gives participants the tools they need to excel in the competitive world of sports media and management.

Course Agenda (Course Units):

Unit One: Foundations of Sports Media

- The history and evolution of sports journalism.
- Storytelling and narrative in sports reporting.
- Using multimedia platforms for effective sports coverage.
- The role of social media in modern sports communication.
- Ethical considerations in sports media.
- The business of sports media and broadcasting rights.
- Crisis management and public relations.

Unit Two: Strategic Sports Event Management

- The lifecycle of a sports event, from concept to conclusion.
- Logistics and operations planning.
- Budgeting and financial management.
- Risk assessment and safety protocols.
- Legal and regulatory considerations for sports events.
- Securing venues and managing contracts.
- Stakeholder and vendor management.

Unit Three: Marketing and Fan Engagement

- Developing a sports marketing strategy.
- Brand management for teams and athletes.
- Leveraging digital channels for fan engagement.
- Using data analytics to understand fan behavior.
- Creating unique sponsorship packages.
- Promoting events through various media channels.
- The importance of community outreach.

Unit Four: Athlete and Team Management

- Building positive relationships with athletes and coaches.
- Managing athlete public appearances.
- Handling media training for athletes.
- The role of agents and their relationship with media.
- Protecting a team's brand and reputation.
- Player relations and contract negotiation.
- The psychological aspect of sports performance.

Unit Five: The Future of Sports and Media

- Emerging technologies in sports broadcasting.
- The impact of social media and streaming services.
- The rise of e-sports and its media landscape.
- Global trends in sports media consumption.
- The future of sports event marketing.
- The role of AI and virtual reality.
- Innovations in fan experience.

FAQ:

Qualifications required for registering to this course?

There are no requirements.

How long is each daily session, and what is the total number of training hours for the course?

This training course spans five days, with daily sessions ranging between 4 to 5 hours, including breaks and interactive activities, bringing the total duration to 20 - 25 training hours.

Something to think about:

In what ways have the rapid advancements in digital media altered the traditional roles of sports journalists and event managers, and what new competencies are required as a result?

What unique qualities does this course offer compared to other courses?

This program stands out by offering a unique, integrated perspective on two critical and often separate fields: sports media and event management. Many training courses focus on one area, but BIG BEN Training Center has developed a curriculum that recognizes the synergy between the two. This course goes beyond theoretical knowledge, using a hands-on approach with real-world case studies and project-based learning. For example, participants will work in teams on a simulated sports event, taking it from a basic idea to a full operational plan. The training also includes specific modules on crisis communication and media training for athletes, skills that are crucial in today's fast-paced sports world but are often overlooked. We also focus on the evolving landscape of sports, including the rise of e-sports and the impact of new technologies. This forward-thinking content ensures that participants are not just prepared for the current market, but are also ready for what's next.