Course Introduction / Overview:

Operating within a government entity demands a deep understanding of legal compliance and regulatory affairs. This specialized training course, from BIG BEN Training Center, is designed for public sector professionals who need to navigate a complex web of laws, rules, and ethical standards. We will explore key topics such as public procurement, anti-corruption laws, administrative procedures, and internal controls. Drawing on the work of legal scholars like Cass R. Sunstein, a leading expert on regulatory law and author of "Simpler: The Future of Government," this program goes beyond traditional legal training to address the unique challenges of public administration. Participants will learn how to identify and mitigate compliance risks, implement effective policies, and ensure transparency and accountability in all their actions. The curriculum is designed to help you understand the legal foundations of government work and the professional responsibilities that come with it. Our program gives you the tools to uphold public trust, manage sensitive information, and act with integrity in a demanding professional environment. This course is crucial for anyone who wants to serve the public with the utmost responsibility and ethical standards.
