Course Introduction / Overview:

Ineffective meetings and poor communication are significant drains on organizational resources, leading to wasted time, decreased productivity, and employee disengagement. This course is meticulously designed to transform these critical business functions from liabilities into strategic assets. We will explore the entire lifecycle of a meeting, from strategic planning and agenda setting to masterful facilitation and actionable follow-up. Beyond meetings, the curriculum delves into the core principles of professional business communication, ensuring every interaction is purposeful, clear, and impactful. Drawing on insights from communication experts like Amy Cuddy, whose work in "Presence" highlights the power of nonverbal cues and confident expression, participants will learn to command attention and foster collaboration. This program offered by BIG BEN Training Center provides a comprehensive framework for mastering both the science of structured meetings and the art of persuasive communication, equipping professionals to lead with clarity and drive results in any corporate environment.

Course Methodology:

The training methodology at BIG BEN Training Center is designed to be highly interactive, practical, and participant-centered, moving beyond theoretical knowledge to build tangible skills. We employ a blended learning approach that combines expert-led presentations with a variety of engaging activities. Participants will actively participate in role-playing scenarios that simulate real-world meeting challenges, such as managing disruptive attendees or navigating difficult negotiations. Group discussions and brainstorming sessions will encourage peer-to-peer learning and the exchange of diverse perspectives. Case study analysis of both successful and unsuccessful business communications will provide valuable insights into best practices. A significant portion of the course is dedicated to hands-on exercises, where participants will draft agendas, practice facilitation, and write professional communications, receiving constructive feedback from both the instructor and their peers. This immersive and experiential learning environment ensures that participants leave with the confidence and competence to immediately apply their new skills in the workplace.

Something to think about:

In an era of increasing digital and hybrid work, how does the psychological contract of a meeting change, and what new protocols are needed to ensure psychological safety and inclusion for all participants, regardless of their physical location?

What unique qualities does this course offer compared to other courses?

This course distinguishes itself by offering a holistic and integrated approach to two of the most critical pillars of corporate success, meeting management and business communication. Unlike programs that treat these subjects in isolation, we explore their deep-seated interdependencies, teaching participants not just how to run a meeting, but how to communicate effectively before, during, and after it to drive real business outcomes. Our curriculum moves beyond outdated theories and focuses on the contemporary challenges of the modern workplace, with dedicated modules on managing hybrid teams and mastering digital etiquette. The methodology is intensely practical, prioritizing hands-on application, peer feedback, and real-world simulations over passive listening. Participants will not just learn about facilitation techniques; they will practice them in a safe and supportive environment. The course is grounded in established communication principles while being forward-looking, ensuring the skills acquired are not only relevant today but are also adaptable to the future of work. It is this unique synthesis of structure and communication artistry that empowers attendees to become truly effective leaders and collaborators.
